Control your Tellus Communication Aid or PC by eye gaze!

The EyeTech TM4 eye tracker is a tool that allows control of a Windows based PC via mouse emulation by eye movement alone. This may be suitable for individuals with poor motor control & are therefore very slow switch users or for individuals who are locked in but, have eye control. The TM4 is now powered by USB with lower power consumption than the TM3.

The EyeTech TM4 can be paired with the Tellus 4 communication aid using our specially designed mounting plate giving an EyeTech accessible communication system that can be mounted either on a Daessy deskmount or Daessy wheelchair mount. The EyeTech TM4 may be easily detached from the Tellus to aid control of another PC.

Calibration of the EyeTech system is achieved by following some simple on screen prompts. To achieve best results the EyeTech TM4's camera tracks both eyes. It is possible for the EyeTech TM4 to track one eye only where the eyes differ in shape or focus. There is a floating menu offering left click, right click, double click etc. Dwell selection may also be used. Once an individual has been calibrated to use the EyeTech system, their results may be saved & next time the Tellus-EyeTech combination switches on, the user is ready to communicate. If a user finds that the calibration is drifting, they may re-calibrate at any time using the quick calibrate option available from the floating menu. Use of the special zoom feature allows a user to magnify small targets in a Windows screen, magnification automatically switches off when a selection has been made.
